

We have the pleasure in recruiting for an advanced wound care manufacturer who are looking for a Regional Sales Manager to add to their fast-growing team. selling wound care products into original equipment manufacturers across the EMEA region. You should come from a surgical sales or wound care background with excellent communication and sales skills. This is a new business role but will have some account management duties.

This company has a structured and team focused culture with an exciting and innovative product range. We are looking for dedicated and forward-thinking sales professional to add to the already thriving and focused middle management team. This is a newly created role so you will have the freedom to build autonomously whilst having the support of the management team. As the region grows and expands there will be scope to build a team around you.

- Man Management responsibilities an advantage but not essential
- Proven new business hunter and deal closer
- Excellent account management and interpersonal skills
- Remotely based
- International sales skills and experience selling into OEMS desired but not essential
- Wound Care or Surgical sales background essential

For more information please contact Dani on 07817 301719 or send us your CV